

Our nation has become the envy of the world because of our innovative nature. Any and all new technology developed must be allowed to thrive and the public will determine it's success. Our capitalist society must be one of public support, or lack of it, for these technologies. Government must never interfere with this especially when driven by special interests who feel threatened. This sort of inteference is not healthy for our nation, nor our future. Remember, we are (supposed to be) a nation by and for the people. We don't elect officials to work their will, but to work the will of the constituents who they serve. All too often, a small, but powerful minority control our officials, and we'll not stand for it anymore.
